Bluetooth Profiles

In order to use Bluetooth technology, devices must be able to interpret certain profiles.

This unit is compatible with following profiles.

GAP (Generic Access Profile)

HSP (Hands Set Profile)

HFP (Hands Free Profile)

GAVDP (Generic Audio/Video Distribution Profile)

A2DP (Advanced Audio Distribution Profile)

AVDTP (Audio/Video Distribution Transport Profile)

AVRCP (Audio/Video Distribution Remote Control Profile)

GAP

GAP is short for Generic Access Profile. This is a basic profile of Bluetooth wireless technology.

HFP

HFP is short for Hands-Free Profile. This profile is used for hands-free phoning with the devices featuring Bluetooth wireless technology.

HSP

HSP is short for Head Set Profile. This profile is used for connecting a headset and for communicating terminal wireless technology.

GAVDP

This profile uses an Initiator (INT), a device (such as a portable player) that initiates a signalling procedure to send a request to an Acceptor (ACP), - such as headphones etc. Although this profile specifies signalling transaction procedures between two devices to set up, terminate and reconfigure streaming channels, using GAVDP alone, it is required to use GAVDP in combination with profiles that depend on this profile - the AVRCP and the VDP.

A2DP

Mobile phones and devices with A2DP high quality stereo bluetooth profile.

This profile is based on the GAVDP, and allows advanced audio to be transmitted (audio streaming) from a Source (SRK) - such as a CD player, to a Sink (SNK), such as headphones.

AVRCP

Based on the GAP Profile, this uses a Controller (CT) - PDA, computer mobile phone etc., which sends a command to a Target (TG) - TV, discman, headphone etc. The command can be to Play, record, colour control, volume control etc., depending on the nature of the devices involved and the scenario. The commands are transported by a new additional protocol, called the Audio/Video Control Transport Protocol (AVCTP). Some scenarios defined are Remote Control from a Separate Controller, Remote Control and Audio Stream Between Two Devices, and Remote Controller with LCD.
